DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. Regarding claim 8, the limitation of "self-lubricating material pairings" was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. It is not clear as to what material is capable of self lubrication and the disclosure provides now insight as to such a material.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 3-5, 9-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Amherd (EP 1103349). Amherd discloses a roller holder unit as claimed including rollers (16) which are rotatably held in block (15) having sides (read onto retaining plates, see figure 1) and a sliding surface (lacking any clear distinguishing features read onto surface of central portion of member 15) whose shape corresponds to the roller surface and its diameter (in that the roller is supported thereon as shown in figure 1). Limitations of claim 4 are disclosed as piston rod (13). Lacking any clear distinguishing features, the groove of claim 5 is read onto the groove formed between the side wall and middle base portion as shown in figure 1. Limitations of claims 9-10 are shown in figures 1-2.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Amherd (EP 1103349). Amherd does not explicitly disclose that his rollers (16) are supported on block (15) through the use of pins, however it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the claimed invention, to have used pins to rotatably secure the rollers of Amherd to the side walls of block (15) since the examiner takes official notice that such construction is well known in the art as a simple and cost effective securing means.

Claims 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Amherd (EP 1103349) in view of Eckert '360. Eckert is relied upon to teach that manufacturing a tool where rollers are used to open jaws such that the rollers or their contact surfaces are coated with a material to lower friction is known in the art (paragraphs 0053-0055) in order to extend service life and for ease of operation. Therefore it would have been obvious to coat the rollers or sliding surfaces of Amherd with a low friction material in order to extend service life and for ease of operation.
